

What do we do now?!

This week we saw the biggest market drop of the year. At times like this the news will focus not only on the boom/bust du jour, but pundits will consult their crystal balls and tell you what it all means for the market.

Well, we have good news and bad news. The bad news is that we don't really know how our latest problems will get sorted out or how the market will react (neither does anyone else by the way). The good news is that your personal financial success has far more to do with your behavior than market cycles.

This is not only good news, its great news because it means if you're willing to build good financial habits then you are in control of your financial future.

To hammer home the point, take a couple minutes
